

IN IOWA, THE TEACHERS AND FIRST RESPONDERS BACK TO WORK ACT WILL PROVIDE $287.2 MILLION IN FUNDS TO SUPPORT UP TO 4,100 EDUCATOR JOBS

The Teachers and First Responders Back to Work Act will save or create nearly 400,000 education jobs through critical investments in the education of our nation's children. Specifically, The Teachers and First Responders Back to Work Act will invest $30 billion to support state and local efforts to retain, rehire, and hire early childhood, elementary, and secondary educators. Facing a $149 million budget shortfall in 2012, cuts to state and local spending on education will place thousands of Iowa teacher jobs at risk. The Teachers and First Responders Back to Work Act will provide Iowa with an additional $287.2 million in funds that will support 4,100 education jobs, provide a jolt to the state economy, and improve the quality of education. By asking millionaires to pay their fair share, The Teachers and First Responders Back to Work Act will grow the Iowa economy without adding a dime to the deficit.

In Iowa, 300 Education Jobs Have Been Lost Since 2008. As a result of the most severe fiscal crisis since the Great Depression, Iowa faced a budget shortfall of $149 million in 2012, 2.4% of the state's General Fund. As a result, Iowa schools have cut 300 education jobs since 2008. These unprecedented layoffs extended the recession and have slowed the recovery in Iowa. Democrats Helped Iowa Avoid an Even Worse Situation, Preventing Thousands of Potential Layoffs. Without Democratic intervention in 2010, Iowa school districts would have been forced to lay off as many as 1,497 teachers. Recognizing the financial difficulty that many state and local governments were experiencing, Democrats shepherded the bipartisan Education Jobs Act into law, thereby protecting 1,800 education jobs in Iowa. Unfortunately, thousands of teacher jobs are still at stake today. [U.S. Department of Education analysis, 8/6/10; National Education Association, 5/10]
